Exhibitor Opportunities

The sixteenth annual Southwest Fox Conference presents the latest in Microsoft Visual FoxPro development techniques and interoperability with other technologies. This highly acclaimed and popular conference is the perfect venue for VFP developers interested in learning more about VFP, further refining their software development skills, and learning what options are available for moving forward.

Exhibiting at this conference is a great way to get your products and services in front of potential customers. There's nothing like face-to-face contact, both at your booth and at social events, to help close the deal.

There are many benefits to exhibiting at Southwest Fox:

- Take advantage of networking opportunities
- Raise brand and product awareness
- Establish profitable and long-term business relationships
- Generate leads and opportunities

The exhibit room is central to all breakout rooms and is the same room where all meals and breaks are served. A reception is held in the exhibit room after the keynote session on Thursday night. These give you plenty of traffic opportunities.

Don't miss this ideal opportunity to showcase your organization and its products and services to the cream of the Visual FoxPro development community.

In addition to a presence at the trade show, you'll have one or more 75-minute sessions in a dedicated room to show your products to potential customers. The conference center also provides a great place for specialized training sessions or user group meetings before or after the conferences.
